

Bioconductor Award 2021

Certificate

Aedín Culhane

For outstanding contributions to the Bioconductor project and community

Aedin has been providing outstanding contributions to and being highly involved in Bioconductor's Community and Technical Advisory Boards. She has been part of the Organizing Committee of several Bioconductor events and has contributed to cross-network connections for several years. She has also contributed to advances in multiomics and 4DNucleome and organoid. Although the results have not yet been announced, she contributed in applying for a grant called EOSS from the Chan Zuckerberg Initiative which is supposed to promote Bioconductor's community activities. Bioconductor says: thank you, Aedin!

August 2021

Simone Bell

Lori Kern

on behalf of the Bioconductor Community Advisory Board